

Do Roman Catholics teach that they have replaced the Jews?

Replacement theology, also known as supersessionism, is a doctrine teaching that Romanists have replaced Israel in God's plan. However, this view is not held among historical, biblical Christians. This false teaching allows anti-Semitism[1]. Unfortunately Roman Catholics continues to teach replacement theology in their catechism[2]. The Bible affirms God's ongoing covenant with Israel. Romans 9:4 shows that God's promises still belong to the Israelites[3]. Additionally, Romans 11:29 is referenced to support the idea that God's call over Israel as a nation is irrevocable[4].

[1] Cunliffe, S. (2020). Everlasting: god's faithfulness to israel. Wipf and Stock.

[2] House, H. W. (2009). The Future of National Israel. Bibliotheca Sacra, 166, 467.

[3] Weldon, J. (2011). God's heart for Israel (and us): what scripture teaches about God's plans for Israel and how we can help. ATRI Publishing.

[4] Cannon, M. E., Roth, D., & Sarah, A. A. (2017). A Land Full of God: Christian Perspectives on the Holy Land. Cascade Books.