

The accounts of Jesus' crucifixion are different in Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. Why? Also, why is Jesus's mother not mentioned more? Are there other Marys? .

Each gospel writer shared his own perspective proving the veracity of the scriptures. Had their accounts been exactly the same, the critic would no doubt accuse them of lying. Men; however, don't die for a lie (Re 6:9).

The nature of Jesus crucifixion was unrecognized before his coming (1 Co 2:7, 8) and for some; it remains unrecognized, still (Re 3:17).

Believers (Acts 5:14; 1 Tim. 4:12) have investigated for themselves (Jn 5:39, Ac 17:2, 2 Pe 1:20, 21) to see if the Bible (Ro 1:2, 3:2, 16:26) is true (Ps 119:160, Jas 1:18).

Jesus' mother, Mary, is mentioned in the scriptures (Is 7:14, Mt 1:16). Some additional Marys mentioned are: Mary, wife of Clopas (Jn 19:25); Mary Magdalene (Mt 27:56, 61); Mary, sister of Martha (Lk 10:38–42)| Mark's mother, Mary (Ac 12:12–17) and Mary, a disciple in Rome (Ro 16:6).

Jesus, not Mary, is to be the focus (Lk 2:49).
