

During one of his numerous tirades against Christianity, why did Hitler praise Shinto and Islam?

When one does not worship God, he inevitably worships someone or something else.

Gerhard Krebs wrote:

Hitler admired not only Shintoism but came also to the conclusion that Islam would have been more suited to the Germanic race than Christianity since the fervour of that religion would have placed the racially superior Germans into the leading role of the bellicose Islamic world. Therefore he lamented the defeat the Arabs had suffered by the Franconian army in the eighth century.¹

God wants to save all men, but he hates those who love violence and persist in their sin (Ps 11:5).

War comes from sin (Jas 4:1, 2). Unbelieving Jews will unfortunately suffer another holocaust during the Great Tribulation (Dan 9:27).

¹ Krebs, G. (2009). "Pan-Germanism Meets Pan-Asianism: Nazi Germany and Japan's Greater East Asia". In Japan and Germany. Leiden, The Netherlands: Brill. doi: https://doi.org/10.1163/9789004217881_012